AP 3.10.03: Student Identity Verification in Distance Learning
Date Comment Received	Comment(s)	Response(s)
10-13-2026	Please read my comments on the Draft of AP 3.10.03. I feel there needs to be more clarity, and perhaps that'll be part of an SOP. In section 2, 2.1: it says that using secure login credentials is a way to verify the identity of students, but given the remote nature, there's no way for us to know whether it is the actual student working through an exam in the LMS. I think it should read something like, which may include, but need not be limited to: • secure login credentials and • proctored examinations; and/ or • technologies and practices that are effective in verifying student identification.	Thank you for this feedback. While your point is well made, the Administrative Procedure establishes the minimum baseline required for compliance, balancing regulatory standards with instructor autonomy and course needs. Instructors and programs retain full discretion to implement proctored exams and/or additional verification processes as appropriate.
